2. Oil Refining and Petrochemicals (engineering carbonate reservoirs of oil and gas, 4D- model of hydrocarbon deposits, technology development for viscous oil deposits and natural bitumen, paleogeophysics: paleomagnetism and paleoclimatology, stratigraphy petroliferous strata);
3. Advanced materials (materials for quantum technologies, functional materials, biomedical materials, polymeric composite materials, construction and smart materials, materials for the automotive industry);

4. Information Technology (Big Data, man-machine interface and visualization, robotics, automation of intellectual activity, operations research, theoretical computer science).

The grant is provided on a competitive basis and covers the following expenses: tuition fee for the entire period, Russian language training (if needed), accommodation in dormitories of KFU, monthly stipend based on the performance of Grantee during his/her education and a one way ticket to Kazan.

Applications for the contest are accepted til July 25, 2014, and till August 1, 2014 for post-graduate school. More information about the rules of admission to KFU and conditions of participation in the grant program can be obtained from the Department of External Relations, Mss. Gazieva Chulpan Fratovna – the head of the students recruitment office, phone: +7 (843) 233-70-27 or email: admission@kpfu.ru, or on the site of KFU admission committee: <http://kpfu.ru/priem>.

We kindly ask you to disseminate this information to prospective candidates.

We are confident that our partnership will help to strengthen international, humanitarian, scientific and academic relations between our two countries and enhance their international competitiveness.

Sincerely,

Rector
